

Imus Ranch

A Working Cattle Ranch For Kids With Cancer

May 22, 2007

Susan McCutcheon, Artistic Director
Dance Innovations Performance Foundation &
The Bickford Theatre at The Morris Museum
13 Roosevelt Ave.
Chatham, NJ 07928

Dear Ms. McCutcheon:

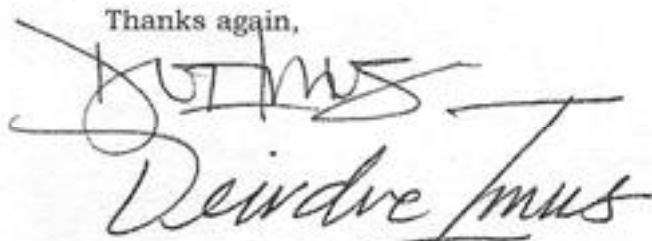

Congratulations. You are now officially part of Imus Ranch. While this is essentially a form letter thanking you, you shouldn't think of it as anything less than an expression of our heartfelt gratitude and appreciation for your donation of $1,000.00

To help you understand how your gift benefits us, we have included with this letter a mission statement that will give you an overview of the ranch's physical properties and our operational philosophy. It costs us about two million dollars a year to run this facility, and the money you've contributed helps enormously.

We finished building Imus Ranch in the summer of 2001. To see where we stand today, we highly recommend the book, "The Imus Ranch: Cooking for Kids and Cowboys," by Deirdre Imus. It's a comprehensive, amusing and diverse portrait of the ranch that includes wonderful photographs of ranch life, recipes for many of the healthful and delicious dishes we serve, and a narrative of a typical, sunrise to sunset, ranch day. "Cooking for Kids and Cowboys" is not only a great way for you to learn, but also to help. All of the author's revenue—100 percent—goes directly to the ranch. Once you've seen the book, you'll understand how the generosity of people like you created a world-class home away from home for these children, and also why Imus Ranch would become a feature subject for the December, 2001 edition of Architectural Digest.

In compliance with the Internal Revenue Code, Imus Ranch hereby confirms that no goods or services were provided in exchange for this gift.

Thanks again,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Deirdre Imus". The signature is stylized and includes a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Don Imus/Deirdre Imus

